

Strategic Solutions Center

Welcome to the Stein Mitchell Strategic Solutions Center!

Our experience – and our presence and deep relationships in Washington, DC – allow us to thrive where law, government, politics, business, and finance intersect. Litigation often is only part of a successful approach to complex business problems, and often it is not part of the approach at all. The most enduring solutions require the ability to go beyond boardrooms and courtrooms and maneuver successfully among the White House, Congress, and the many other corridors of federal, state or local authority. We are uniquely positioned to be your “solutions” partner.

When it comes to government relations, regulatory affairs and complex business matters, we believe that our clients deserve much more than the same old wheel-spinning practice of introductions followed by fruitless meetings. We reject these tired tactics. We concentrate instead on your goal.

As a law firm committed to your success, we strive to be different. Lobbying “solutions” are antiquated. Today’s challenges require our clients to think outside the box. We listen to our clients, understand their challenges, and make their goals and aspirations our own. We craft customized strategies that include proactive and comprehensive government relations, regulatory affairs, legal and business-oriented solutions. Our clients find that leveraging our knowledge and extensive relationships, combined with a thoughtful, winning approach, makes the difference.

As a Fortune 100 company said about us: “Stein Mitchell was solely focused on achieving our goal. They put together the necessary team and served as strategic lead in a very complex, crucially important endeavor for our company. And they delivered. After thirty-five years working in DC with teams of lobbyists, I had not worked with anyone in Washington that followed that playbook before now.”
